FASCINATING JOB IS THAT HELD BY WILLIAM MURPHY

Registrar of Soldier Graves Meets With The Unusual

LIST IS BEING COMPILED

Locates Grave of Major William Kennedy, Killed By A Robber

Probably the most interesting and fascinating job in Bucks county is the position of Registrar of Soldier Graves held by William E. Murphy, of Doylestown, former county treasurer. He meets daily with something out of the ordinary that is interesting in his line of work.

Registrar Murphy is compiling a complete list of soldier and sailor dead in Bucks county, including all wars.

Thursday he located, in the Deep Run Presbyterian Cemetery in Bedminster township the grave of Major William Kennedy, a Revolutionary soldier, who, according to the marking on his tombstone: "Died at the age of forty, on September 1, 1785, from wounds received from a robber." The robber, it has been learned was Moses Doan, one of the notorious Doan outlaws. Moses Doan himself, who was killed later, is buried near Plumsteadville on the Simon Keller farm.

In Springfield Cemetery, near Pleasant Valley, Registrar Murphy has listed the graves of thirteen Revolutionary soldiers and one Indian War veteran, all very plainly marked. The earliest stone is on the grave of Elias Bretelman, an Indian War veteran, born September 27, 1707, who died October 25, 1781. The earliest Revolutionary War marker in the Springfield Cemetery is that of Johannes Mann, who was born June 21, 1730, and died April 14, 1813. Registrar Murphy says there are more Revolutionary War soldiers in the Springfield Cemetery than any other cemetery so far visited by him.

In a little burial plot in the rear of a barn on the Weirbach farm, near Thatcher, two graves were recently discovered by Registrar Murphy, who is anxious to ascertain whether they are soldier graves. On one grave a hen nest and six eggs were found. On each stone is the name of William Bryan, evidently one being senior and the other junior.

Another unusual grave marking was found in the Friends' Graveyard at the Buckingham Meeting, where three beautiful marble stones mark the graves of three generations in one family, Patrick Harford, a veteran of the Civil War; Charles W. Harford, a veteran of the Spanish War, and Philip M. Harford, veteran of the World War.

Quakertown Council At Odds Over Police Car

QUAKERTOWN, July 8.—Quakertown's police car question has not yet been settled by Council.

At the meeting of Council the balloting on the police car bids resulted as follows:

Ford, 3 votes.
Plymouth, 4 votes.
No car, 5 votes.

Then argument ensued. Those who voted "no car" claimed that their vote decided the election, while the Chief Burgess was of the opinion that the election favored the Plymouth car by a 4-3 vote over the Ford, and that the "no car" vote of five had no bearing whatsoever since the balloting was on the Ford and Plymouth bids.

The secretary, thereupon, was instructed to get an opinion from the solicitor and report at an adjourned meeting which will be held next Wednesday night.

With the question still unsettled and the old police car "totally disabled," the patrolmen are now pedestrians and will continue as such until—well, next Wednesday may decide.

1,000,000 WOMEN BACK ROOSEVELT

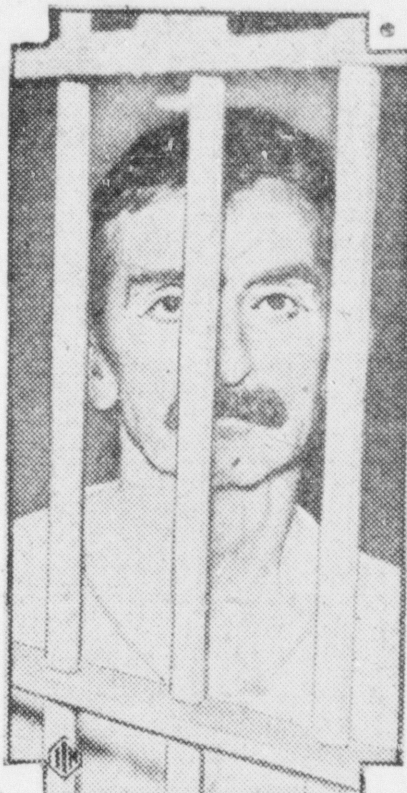

New York City, July 8.—A million women's votes were today pledged to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for president in the November election. The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, headed by Mrs. Charles H. Sabers, former Republican national committee woman, by vote of the executive board, decided 51 to 19, to support the Democratic nominee because of his party's outspoken prohibition repeal plank. Prominent Republican and Democratic women throughout the country are numbered among the organization's membership which totals one million.

Detective Russo and Troopers Raid Point Pleasant Store

A store operated by Henry Birkenheimer, Point Pleasant, was raided yesterday by Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo and State Police from Doylestown barracks.

AROUND WORLD FLIERS LOCATED AT MINSK

Griffin and Mattern Forced Down at Dawn Yesterday

TAKE TRAIN TO MOSCOW

By Kendall Foss

MOSCOW, July 8.—(INS)—Bennett Griffin and James Mattern, American round-the-world fliers missing for a day and a half after taking off from Berlin for Moscow, were located today at Minsk, Russia, about half way along their route, where they were forced down at dawn on Thursday.

An official report by the Octobrisky Airforce stated neither flier was hurt although other sources reported one was injured badly.

Their plane, the "Century of Progress," was smashed up and the airmen left it today to entrain for Moscow, abandoning their daring and well begun attempt to beat the globe-circling record of Post and Gatty, fellow Americans. The fliers spent the night at a hotel in Minsk and were unable to communicate with the outside world.

Both Griffin and Mattern boarded a train for Moscow. Telegraphic dispatches from Minsk, near the Polish border, as given out by the Octobrisky Airforce stated the fliers were forced down by a broken rudder.

Minsk is on a main line railroad to Moscow.

In reaching Minsk the fliers had completed a little more than half of their Berlin-Moscow hop, and were on a direct route to their destination.

NOTE SIGNS OF LIFE

Paris, July 8.—Hope that some of the 63 men missing in the sinking of the French submarine "Promethee" may still be alive, was revived today by the finding of a telephone buoy over the sunken craft. "The telephone buoy seemed to be attached to the wreck," the Minister of Marines told the press, "and bubbles are coming to the surface." This was the first indication of life about the Promethee, since it went down at 6 p. m. yesterday. The wreck was located this morning.

"PROSPERITY HAS ALWAYS RETURNED"

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 8.—"Go Forward" was the theme of the annual birthday message of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., celebrating his 93rd birthday. He issued the following statement:

"These are days when many are discouraged. In my 93 years of life, depressions have come and gone. Prosperity has always returned and will return again."

NO DEPRESSION SHOWN IN BUCKS MARRIAGES

Figures Show Gain in First Six Months of 1932 Over Those of 1931

181 LICENSES IN JUNE

There is no depression in the marriage license business so far as Bucks county is concerned figures compiled at the expiration of the first six months of 1932 indicate. Other counties throughout the state have shown a loss, but Bucks county is thirty-two licenses ahead of last year.

During the first six months this year a total of 772 marriage licenses were granted at the Court House, Doylestown, compared to 749 for the same period last year. This year there was a gain in the months of January, February and March over last year, but a slight loss in April, May and June over last year.

During the month of June this year a total of 181 marriage licenses were granted, an average of seven for every day the marriage license office was open during the month.

The average age of the male applicants in June was twenty-eight while the female applicants average twenty-five.

Sixty-four per cent of the 362 individuals who applied for licenses in June were non-residents of Bucks county, which is a higher average than usual for the remaining 36 per cent who were residents of Bucks county.

There were eighteen school teachers in the June list and six nurses. Fifteen men and fourteen women made their second matrimonial venture in June. Twenty-eight divorcees applied for licenses in June.

Philadelphia and Trenton supplied 130 applicants in June while many others came from other sections of New Jersey outside of Trenton.

June's record of 181 licenses was just nine short of June a year ago. The homes of Clerk of Orphans' Court John Thompson at Point Pleasant and Deputy Clerk Jacob Shelly, Fountainville, were "open for business" until midnight last night in an effort to accommodate any "late comers" in order to pass last year's June mark, but when the books closed at midnight the dock-et was still nine short.

ENGLISH PAPERS WISH DREAMS MAY COME TRUE

Communication From Bristol, England, Publishers, Comments on Courier Editorial

TELL OF OTHER SHIPS

The Courier today is in receipt of a communication from "The Western Daily Press and Bristol Mirror" and the "Bristol Observer" published at Bristol, England.

The letter comments upon the arrival of the S. S. "Bristol City" and expresses the hope that some day a wish expressed in a Courier editorial, extending greetings to the S. S. Bristol City, may be realized.

The communication follows: "The Western Daily Press and Bristol Mirror, Bristol, England, June 27th, 1932.

The Editor, "The Courier," Bristol, Penna., U. S. A.

Dear Sir: We here in the parent City of Bristol have heard with interest and pleasure that a ship, bearing our name, and belonging to our port, is to be the first ocean-going vessel to navigate the Upper Delaware River since the completion of the 20-foot channel.

It is singularly strange and appropriate that a Bristol ship with a Bristol name should be the pioneer craft in this commendable Delaware River enterprise.

It was a Bristol ship—the Matthew—with a Bristol crew under John Cabot which first reached the mainland of North America, here in Bristol, we like to think that your great country was named not after Amerigo Vespucci, the Venetian, but after Richard Amerike, the friend of John Cabot and Sheriff of our ancient city. A little Bristol ship, "The Jenny," was the first to sail up the great Columbia river, and it was a Bristol Ship, the Great Western, which inaugurated the Era of Steam by crossing the Atlantic with passengers in twelve days in 1838.

Now another ship of Bristol is to be the first to navigate the new channel of the Delaware, and we of the old Bristol in England, would like you to convey to the younger Bristol, in that wonderful country which was named after our fellow citizen, William Penn, greeting and wishes for success in all that is undertaken for progress and advancement, and may your dream that some day the ship, "Bristol City" will be warped to a dock at Bristol, Pa., be realized.

Yours faithfully, A. A. ALLEN, Managing Director.

OTHERS TELL OF ALLEGED FRAUDS IN LOT PURCHASE

Another Bristol Resident and Trenton Man File Complaints

COUPLE TO FACE COURT

Bristol Man Paid $750 Which Lot Owners Deny Receiving

Additional complaints are being lodged against Earl P. Taylor, real estate broker, 125 Vine street, Trenton, N. J., and his former partner, Mrs. Mary M. Stuart, a former Trenton resident but now a resident of Reading, Pa.

The additional complaints were filed at the office of Justice of Peace Joseph Keating, South Langhorne.

Taylor and Mrs. Stuart were active in selling lots at Pinewald, N. J., and several Bristol residents made purchases through them.

The new complaints have been filed by Antonio Pirazzano, Bristol, and Augusto A. Marini, Trenton.

Pirazzano claims that he paid $750 but the lot owners tell him that they have never received the money.

Previous complaints were filed by Louis Paul, 829 Pine street, Bristol. Mrs. Paul says she paid the Stuart woman a total of $558 for which they hold receipts. The lot owners at Pinewald have them credited with paying $44.

Carmella Catucci, South Langhorne, hold receipts for $800 but he is credited with having paid only $40.

It is said that there are a number of Bristol people who made purchases at Pinewald but that they are slow in filing their complaints.

Prospective purchasers were taken to Pinewald in chartered buses, giving free dinners and otherwise entertained on Sundays.

The lots at Pinewald were owned by the B. W. Sangor Company, for whom Taylor and Mrs. Stuart were representatives.

Taylor made all collections of payments on properties, according to Mrs. Stuart but that she signed all receipts as secretary and treasurer of the company.

Taylor states that he had turned all money over to Mrs. Stuart.

DREAMERS

Scientists are not an unromantic lot whose imaginations are imprisoned in laboratories and test-tubes. There are dreamers among them whose visions are as fantastic as Alice in Wonderland, and as long as they dream the world will have its romance and adventure.

There was Sir Charles Parsons, inventor of the steam turbine, who advocated the sinking of a shaft 12 miles in diameter to tap the internal heat of the earth. Georges Claude spent a million dollars to prove that there is enough heat in the surface waters of the tropics to run a low-pressure steam engine. Picard ascended 10 miles into the stratosphere in an aluminum ball. Professor Goddard is experimenting with a type of rocket which he hopes will make interplanetary transportation possible.

Another member of this distinguished company of dreamers and romanticists is Dr. F. Jentsch. His great adventure is the creation of a searchlight capable of casting a beam of light upon the moon visible from the earth. The best he has done yet is a searchlight visible at a calculated altitude of 21 miles. And the moon is 238,857 miles distant! Dr. Jentsch now knows that he will never illumine the moon but his romancing has led to the discovery in the atmosphere's luminosity unexpected breaks that may bear some relation to the amount of hydrogen, helium and other gases that occur at different heights.

Most of the realities of today are the result of yesterday's dreaming.

AMATEURS AND TEMPTATION

Of the 147 golfers who started in the open golf championship relatively few are amateurs and none of that number was conceded much of a chance to win the title. This is surprising since the men who play golf for the love of the sport far outnumber those who make a living out of it.

There are now three types of players who enter open-golf tournaments, the simon-pure amateurs, the outright professionals and a cross between the two who is best described as gentlemen professionals, or business-men golfers, who while dominated by their love of the game are not averse to taking the thousands of dollars that the championship is worth.

No doubt the depression is largely responsible for those desertions from the amateur ranks. While their incomes were adequate, or nearly so, for their needs, few amateurs of championship calibre were tempted by the rich rewards offered those who would exploit their prowess on the links. Things are different now.

Friends of amateur golf deeply lament this, and fear that it will take another decade of prosperity to undo the harm which has been done since 1929. The scars left by professionalism upon the amateur body are not easily removed, to which college football can attest.

Accuracy would require Congress to call it the ways committee, since the means are lacking.

Other young creatures leave home, too, when they are able to get about, but they don't come back to meal time.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER FORTY-SEVEN

She moved into the apartment that Maxine had fallen heir to. Got permission to have a small upright piano. It was the only thing they ever really quarreled over.

"A grand would have given us a little class! But that thing—ugh!" "I know, it isn't very beautiful. But I've got to live cheaply. You don't know how poor I am. The only clothes I have are the grand evening things Madame Nahman gave me, and I can't wear them on the street."

Maxine grinned. "Oh, something will turn up!"

Back home in Woodlake, if she had read about a girl coming to New York, and falling into the sort of luck she had had, she wouldn't have believed it. You either had luck, or you didn't. Maxine, who practically lived by her wits, being, strangely enough, a technically good girl, took everything, and gave nothing but her personality.

She and her small circle were the sort whom traveling salesmen from Columbus and all points west invariably meet and take to dinner, a show, and roof cabaret afterward. The number of blind dates that Maxine acquired was something that never failed to astound Lily Lou, who steadfastly refused to accompany her.

"Why not? Free meal, good show—I make 'em get the best seats, and pick the shows! Dance a bit afterward if they can dance, eat some more, and then leave 'em. Not so bad—for a plain looking girl? And you—with your looks..." Lily Lou laughed. "No, I couldn't. I just couldn't do it. I—I don't know—Early bringing up, I guess."

The next few months would be ghastly. Even doing all her own laundry, and all the cleaning in the apartment, and cutting her food down to almost nothing, she didn't see how she'd manage.

Gwin was staying at his Long Island home during the summer months, and only came in one day a week to teach. Lily Lou hesitated when he made out her first weekly check. "I can't take a week's pay for a day's work," she said dejectedly.

"You must live. How much are you paying for the baby's board?"

"Fifty."

"And your rent?"

"There's none. The apartment belonged to a girl who—who married or something, and went to Europe, and the lease isn't up until November, so Maxine and I—"

"I see." Gwin wiped away a smile.

"So there's just the food, and one doesn't want to eat much this hot weather. I spend quite a lot on carfare though—to get out to Jamaica Park to see the bubble, but I'm hoping to get church work—"

He wheeled on her sharply. "I won't coach you if you force your voice!"

"I won't force it. I'll be careful."

"Careful, eh! I've told you what happens to coloraturas who break down!"

"But Gwin, I'll be careful. It isn't as though I were just beginning. I know how to keep my voice forward now—"

"All right. Choose between the church and that Metropolitan chorus idea you and Tony were raving about."

"Choose between them! Why, one's a thing to do for pay, and one's a chance to break in—"

"Exactly!"

"But even you said I had to eat!"

She went home, more shaken than she had been since the old days when she first faced the bubble's coming. If she could only have stayed with Nahman until summer was over... But no use to cry over spilt milk.

Well, she'd get a job. She thought of the things she could do. Waitress. Telephone operator. Pianist. But if she took a regular job she couldn't keep on with Gwin—no body would let her off a day a week.

"I can't take a week's pay for a day's work," she said dejectedly.

And after his regular classes started she could conscientiously take the money. Twenty-five dollars a week and free lessons, with lessons costing twenty dollars the half hour...

Oh, how did anyone ever do it? How did girls ever become opera singers? And even if you had the voice, and the background, and the languages, and the dramatic school training, the dancing, the fencing and all the rest of it, what ever in the world did you do for money to live on?

She'd have to have money for the bubble's board. Tony... but she couldn't ask him for a loan, he had too many back debts—it wouldn't be right...

There was no one else. Maybe she could write home. Perhaps that could advance her something, and then when Uncle Eph's estate was settled... Besides, this would be the last time she'd have to ask. Perhaps they could spare her just a few dollars, say for two months, until Gwin started full time classes again...

She got up and wrote out the message, night letter.

The answer was waiting for her at noon the next day.

"Sorry to have to tell you impossible help you now. Did not want to alarm you, but mother has had the flu and now pneumonia. Asks for you constantly. Wish you could come, but no use to consider it if you are broke. Will let you know of any danger. MAY."

And right on the heels of that: "End very near. If you can borrow from Madame Nahman and come, suggest you do so, for mother asks for you constantly. All the rest of family together. If you cannot borrow Raymond and I will manage to send you ticket. Advise. MAY."

By late afternoon Lily Lou had wired May, bought her ticket, and had kissed the bubble a tearful goodbye.

She had five hundred and fifty dollars of Dwight Gwin's money, and how she was ever to repay him she didn't know.

She got the last message on the train.

Read it over and over, trying to realize what it would be like without mother. Said it over and over to herself... "Mother, dead. Mother, dead."

But it did not seem real. In the midst of her worried meditation, "Mother, dead... mother... dead" there would come the thought of the bubble. Hadn't she better wire Maxine to go see him on Sunday? Maxine was so unobscuring, though. Tony would be better, but Tony was working so hard, and Sunday was his only chance to rest.

Back to mother again... "Oh, if I'd only started sooner. If May had only told me... but of course she didn't know. It wasn't her fault. ... Oh, dear, it's so hot, and dirty. ... Holsteins in that pasture... pretty things, Holsteins... Wonder what they did with all Uncle Eph's sheep?... Mother must have known I'd come... she must know that I'm coming now... between those who love their bound to be some sort of telepathy... "I won't see Ken, of course... Still, I might. It would be natural for him to come to see us, on account of mother. It isn't absurd to imagine that. Peggy Sage couldn't object to that. He knew mother. She used to like him... "Poor, darling mother... "It would have been criminal to bring the bubble. The heat would have wilted him. Ken doesn't know he's alive anyway. Even Maxine thinks he's the loveliest child she ever saw. He's even gaining during the hot summer. Mrs. Jensen is wonderful to him... at least she seems so... Better wire Tony to call and make sure... (To Be Continued)

INDEPENDENTS LOSE GAME BY FORFEIT

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Schedule for Tonight
EDGELY vs. THIRD WARD
(Sullivan's Field)

Result of Last Night
ST. ANN'S, 9; INDEPENDENTS, 0
(Forfeited to St. Ann's)

(By T. M. Juno)

Refusing to abide Umpire-in-Chief White's command to continue to play ball in the seventh inning, the Independents forfeited their game to St. Ann's, 9-0, although they were in the lead at the time, the score being 7-6. The game was played on St. Ann's field.

The fray was slow and disputes took place from the first inning on because of the intense rivalry between the two clubs. The final of these disputes took place in the seventh inning.

Going into the seventh, the Independents held a 7-4 lead. Fields, first hitter of the frame, drove a liner to left which was lost in the tall grass and enabled the runner to circle the bases for a home run. Oriola walked. Why no lifted a fly behind third base. Juno then tripled to right center, sending Oriola home and making the count 7-6. Here the Independents rushed to the plate and argued that it was too dark to continue to play. But Umpire White thought differently and sent the Independents back to the field, and when they refused he forfeited the game to the St. Ann's team.

The Independents scored two runs in the first, two in the third and three in the fourth. In the last three innings they were blanked.

St. Ann's tallied three in the first, one in the fifth and two runs were in before the umpire's decision was made.

Tullo led the "Indies" hitters with a double and single led the St. Ann's clubbers, while Juno had a triple and single.

Pleo played good ball for the "Saints," coming up with several hard stops and retiring the runner at first.

AIRTIGHT PITCHING WINS FOR TULLYTOWN

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE

Results of Last Night
TULLYTOWN, 4; ODD FELLOWS, 1
HULMEVILLE, 3; BRISTOL, 0
A. O. H., 4; CROYDON, 2

(By T. M. Juno)

Airtight pitching featured the games of the Lower Bucks County League as the biggest surprise of the year was exhibited at Emmie when the Tullytown nine after dropping fifteen straight, conquered the Odd Fellows, 4-1.

Hulmeville, with Joe Kohler in fine form, whitewashed the Bristol A. A., 3-0. Kohler allowed the A's only seven hits, and was invincible throughout. The only player who seemed to bother Kohler was Wilkinson, who collected two hits and was robbed of a third by a nice running catch by Black, centerfielder of the winners.

"Gene" Lawler hurled for the losers and outside of the first frame had things easy. He allowed four hits and three runs in the first and after that settled down and only two batters reached first base from then on. This game was played on Sullivan's field.

"Eddie" Sullivan and "Will" Holland engaged in a hurling duel at Croydon with the former emerging the victor by the score of 4-2. The "Hiboes" found Holland for seven hits while the Croydonites could solve Sullivan for six blows.

The winners scored runs in the first, fourth, fifth and sixth innings, while the losers scored in the fourth and then rallied another across in the last inning.

Roe and Thompson led the batters with two hits each. One of Roe's hits was a long double to centerfield.

York and Harbor Grace at the beginning of their attempt to beat the globe-circling record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the pair left Harbor Grace several hours behind. Then after a record-smashing Atlantic crossing to Berlin in 19 hours and 50 minutes, Griffin and Mattern took off from the German capital 10 hours and 43 minutes ahead of the record-holders' time.

Now the Post and Gatty record will stand a while longer, for, even if the former army flyers' plane were to be repaired, their lost time would give them a handicap they would be unable to overcome.

Although it was not immediately known how badly the ship was smashed, the damage was believed to have caused them to abandon the record-attempt.

BRISTOL WELCOMES OCEAN CRAFT

(From the Philadelphia Inquirer)

Trenton properly celebrated its arrival at the dignity of a marine terminal when 30,000 persons witnessed the docking of the British steamship Bristol City at the new Municipal Wharf. For a quarter century Frederick Donnelly waged the campaign to improve Delaware River navigation. The dredging of a 20-foot channel and the building of the city pier were the fruits of his efforts, now culminating in the unloading of an overseas cargo brought here in an ocean-going vessel. It is not surprising that the citizens have been re-electing Mayor Donnelly for a score of years.

Trenton was commercially important before it ever attained a place in American military history. Waterborne trade was brought there by old Durham flat-bottom boats which carried grain and iron ores from the upper reaches of the Delaware as far north as Easton. These scows drew little water and in their way served admirably the commerce for which they were constructed. That was in the early part of the 18th century. In 1804 a bridge was erected across the river, affording an all-land route from New York to Philadelphia. The project facilitated horse-drawn traffic between important centers and made Trenton a focal point for the only two kinds of transportation known in that primitive day.

It was fitting that Philadelphia was represented at the celebration. Pennsylvania also had occasion to rejoice. The people of Bristol cheered lustily when the craft passed their shores. They felt a new sense of kinship in the name given the steamship, Bristol City, in honor of the British town so closely associated with William Penn. They saw in the incident an expansion of the Port of Philadelphia and the prospect for a redistribution of marine commerce which in the past has been too greatly congested at New York.

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will Lindhorst

HOW RING AND CORD TRICK IS WORKED

The performer uses two portiere rings, large enough for the hand to squeeze through, and a piece of cord for this trick. One ring is secretly slipped over the hand and the wrist of one arm, where it is hidden by the sleeve. Appearing before the audience the performer asks some one to tie securely each end of the cord to his wrists and seal it with wax if desired, and, passing the second ring around for inspection, he announces that, without untying the cord, he will hang the ring on the cord. With his back turned he slips the exposed ring in a pocket and pulls the hidden one over his hand and onto the cord. The audience is then allowed to again inspect the ring and cord to ascertain that they have not been tampered with.

Fired But Triumphant

Appearing slightly wearied from his hurried round-trip to Chicago, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for the Presidency, still managed to smile his acknowledgment of the plaudits of his well-wishers as he drove to the executive mansion in Albany, N. Y., after his arrival from the Windy City. Despite a heavy rain, a great crowd turned out to welcome the Democratic standard-bearer.
